Hello and welcome to the forum.

Original DB 3 litre items come up on eBay pretty regularly. Sometimes the price sought is daft but you can always try negotiating, naturally. Expect to pay well north of £100 for one in fair condition and perhaps £300+ for a mint example these days. They also crop up occasionally at auction e.g. I picked up an unused/unissued 2.6 manual at the Bonhams Newport Pagnell auction a few years back.

Good luck.

Tim

Hi WO,

Somewhere I have a 2.6 one I would swap for something else useful. My contact details are in the Club members' list as "M34"

This should do the job for now, price is dirt cheap, and comes from an excellent Lagonda home:

This manual is also very, very useful, worth about £30-35 and strongly recommended indeed (same seller). My copy is well used, straightforward and well written:

Both of the books I recommended from Glossop were sold after I recommended them,...
