not a Le Mans racer and no Bentley design...but a Lagonda, you even can buy it and may be an alternative when getting older 🤔

It remains to be seen if these plans will go through under the present economic circumstances...

The man supplying the new leather for my car has already supplied Aston Martin Lagonda with sufficient leather for TWO new Lagondas - one will be cream and the other grey/blue.

So there will be two - which is interesting of course. However, one can hardly call the manufacture of two cars a "revival of the Lagonda marque" nor can it be seriously qualified as "back in production".

The two cars are to be 'pre-production' examples for showing at various Motor Shows. I expect that if the response is strong enough then a production line will be set up. No doubt the current financial period will have a greater bearing on production viability!
