Advice when buying an LG45 S1

Written by Keith at Sep 15, 2019 11:55 am

This will be my second Lagonda, my first pre-war car and therefore my first pre-war Lagonda.

It has been a long, patient search to find what I hope will be the car for me. I will see it (and I feel confident that I will buy it), this week.

It is an original, matching numbers, Tickford bodied Tourer from 1936. It is an S1 with decent provenence.

Any advice or tips that you could let me have will be most gratefully received.

It is a non runner, was laid up several years ago. I am assured she was running well when parked up. The only reason she was laid up and not used was because other projects got in the way (I am told).

The seller is knowledgable and seems completely genuine.

I look forward to any advice that is forthcoming.

Thank you in advance
Keith
