

Lagondaforum: Rapier?

Rapier?

Written by 911sah at Dec 04, 2007 9:40 pm

Where's the Rapier section? 🤔

Or are we too small to appear on the radar?

alan

Re: Rapier?

Written by at Dec 05, 2007 5:34 pm

Thanks for your input!

Re: Rapier?

Written by Gerard Lansink at Dec 11, 2007 2:09 pm

Dear Rapier friends,

I am an Abbott tourer owner and restaured two times a Rapier.

The first a 1935 one and the second who is still in my possession is a 1934 one.

I can help people with photos and other help as drawings of wood and hoodframe, by example.

I am not a dealer, only an enthousiast.

Please let me know what your questions are, I hope that I can be helpfull?

There is also the Rapier Register for a lot of help and spares.

I can eventually send you the address.

Regards, Gerard Lansink.

Re: Rapier?

Written by Colin M34 at Dec 26, 2007 2:50 pm

Hello everybody,

The Rapier is a brilliant car and a great credit to the Lagonda company to design and build such a innovative machine. The Rapier Register, which I enjoyed belonging to when I had my car, is one of the best one-model one-make clubs you can get. Such focus. Such enthusiasm. It has one of the best spares operation. May I cordially encourage readers to this forum to post chats which cover ALL makes of Lagonda, not just the 'big' ones.

Colin Mallett

PS sold my Rapier and bought a 16/80, sadly without a preselector box, which I miss...
