

Lagondaforum: some posts moved to the right topic

some posts moved to the right topic

Written by Peter S30 at May 25, 2011 8:50 pm

I moved some posts to the right topic without notice to the authors. Please try to post directly where it fits:

anything related to a certain type of car should be posted in that category and subcategory, e.g. parts wanted for an M45 should be posted in "M45, LG45, LG6" category and "Wanted" subcategory.

Only general technical information and spare parts not specific to a certain type of car (batteries, painting, flasher units..) should be posted under "General technical..."

Re: some posts moved to the right topic

Written by Peter S30 at Apr 09, 2012 9:30 am

Please take your time to select the right place to post something on this forum. The few selections are: right car type, engine/other/for sale/wanted or if it is something more general: there are some other categories.

Please do not start a new story as a reply to an ongoing discussion but start a new topic in this case.

It is quite time consuming to sort these things out later.

If it happens too often I will simply delete posts which are in the wrong place.
