This is lovely!

Note that ST24A is a cleaned up version of the ST24 pillarless saloon without the peak. It also has long wings which I think look wonderful. The car does not look too bad. There are many ST24 body bits lying around so there should be no problem with bits missing. It also seems to have been dry-stored.

Having an M45 ST34 saloon means that I will not be bidding myself but I would be delighted to encourage anyone to take on this project. PLEASE don't let it be broken up into another tourer!

Yummy

Colin

Hi Colin,

I agree 100 percent with your comments. I would love to restore a saloon. Just wish I had the time. I am tempted to go and have a look.
