

Lagondaforum: Razor Edge Saloon

Razor Edge Saloon

Written by Julian at Aug 21, 2012 2:13 pm

As it says,

Just picked up a great V12 Razor Edge saloon for restoration / refurb.

Been stood inside for the last 30 years apparently and is in really very tidy condition with the doors etc in exceptional condition. Not one mm of sag when opened! Everything working and even good leatherwork. Paint is a sickly orange brown two tone though but that can be easily sorted.

Just re-commissioning it now and seeing if / how she runs.

We will probably put it up for sale shortly. Or maybe we'll keep it and enjoy, not decided yet.

Regards,

Julian

Re: Razor Edge Saloon

Written by Colin M34 at Aug 21, 2012 6:28 pm

Julian,

What coach builder made the body? Any chance of a photo?

Colin

Re: Razor Edge Saloon

Written by alistair at Aug 21, 2012 6:29 pm

Julian

I also have a lovely V12 razor edge saloon - mechanically perfect but needing body tidying and painting. Mine is by Freestone and Webb - who is the coachbuilder of yours?

rgds

Re: Razor Edge Saloon

Written by alistair at Aug 21, 2012 6:30 pm

Colin

precision timing! great minds think alike

Re: Razor Edge Saloon

Written by Julian at Aug 23, 2012 12:18 pm

Hi,

Body is Freestone and Webb.

Hopefully will have it running shortly.

Will do some photos when I get it out as it's tucked away at the moment.

However interestingly it differs from any others I've seen in that it has a rear mounted spare wheel and it looks a lot more sporty in the process.

Regards,

Julian