Lagonda Body At Hershey 2012

Written by bruffsup at Oct 13, 2012 6:30 pm

Walked about 100 miles through Hershey the last few days and found nothing Lagonda except post war brochures and what looked to my uneducated eye to be a home made or Vanden Place? body for an M45? Supposed to be all aluminum with no wings or interior and asking $12000 which too me seemed like one too many zeros. I took a few pictures and have the phone number if anyone is interested. The vendor told me he didn't want to take it home( can't blame him!~) so it may be gone, he said most of the tire kickers thought it was a jeepster body! I have no personal stake in this just posting the info.

The body @ Hershey was from my LG45, 12139. It was built in Kenya and is being replaced by a new 2 place boat tail. (see attachment)

The old body is well constructed but incredibly heavy. After removing the old and installing what is in the photo, I had to lower the rear suspension 3+ inches, and also had to soften the spring rate!
