

Re: Randall 977

Written by TVJL at Aug 06, 2013 12:48 pm

Looking good, Christian. Who did you use (for the body work)?

Re: Randall 977

Written by ray sherratt at Aug 06, 2013 6:50 pm

Hi Christian.

Just as I remenber them when I was an apprentice mec. The colour is gorgeous suits it to perfection, keep up your outstanding work, Forget about the (knockers) I won't print what's on my mind.

Ray Sherratt.

Re: Randall 977

Written by randall977 at Aug 19, 2013 2:40 pm

Thank you for doing this, I hope to contribute some more material soon to help make up for it.

Randall 977

Written by ray sherratt at Aug 03, 2013 3:56 pm

Hi

What has happend to Chistian his pictures and comments where most informative,very good self educated engineer. I do hope he is well.

Ray Sherratt.

Re: Randall 977

Written by randall977 at Aug 05, 2013 11:11 am

Hi Ray, I'm here and well, thanks for the compliments!

I've had a break from the car while it's been in the body shop in which time I've edited the repair blogs and hope to re-do them once the car is complete.

Here are some photos of my car recently back;

Re: Randall 977

Written by randall977 at Aug 07, 2013 8:50 am

Thanks Ray and Tim. I gave the colour a great deal of thought and had a few sample panels produced - the final choices were Cumberland Grey and the original Snow Shadow Grey.

Snow Shadow Grey is slightly pearlescent so it tends to reflect it's surroundings, it can sometimes look more silver or blue or green. I was worried it would be too light for the chrome but I'm really pleased with the result.

Lagondaforum: Randall 977

Re: Randall 977

Written by TVJL at Aug 07, 2013 11:01 am

So, it's Snow Shadow Grey? More pictures please. Could you tell me the code, btw. Was it difficult to 'match', if you know what I mean.

Re: Randall 977

Written by David at Aug 07, 2013 2:56 pm

It would be very helpful to know the current code and manufacturer of SSG in case I wanted to return my other car to its original spec from Citroen Silver, thanks

Re: Randall 977

Written by SRD at Aug 11, 2013 6:50 am

I see Cumberland Grey didn't make it in the end. A wise choice going back to period color. how close a colour palette match is the SSG on 108 to that from the works ?

The body looks excellent - wonderful work.

Simon

Re: Randall 977

Written by roadmap at Aug 15, 2013 10:55 am

Nearly bought one once , any for sale
