

Lagondaforum: LR/133/R for sale!

I would suggest that the figure achieved for LR155 of £180K would be a good starting place.

So my suggestion of the market place would be £180-220k, yup, I do think that this car may crash through the barrier, and perhaps a little more if several parties are bidding for it.

I tend to agree. Much will depend on condition etc.. However, since so few of these car are coming to the market now it will only take two eager well-heeled punters to push on through.

What I know of the car, tends to suggest, a very, very well maintained car, and I think that the picture does not flatter it.

The current owner only keeps and has cars which are as near perfect as possible.

Does said person have other Lagondas in their collection?

I now attach a few pictures of this car, which looks to be in very fine fettle, with a large amount of money spent on it.

A few changes from standard spec, but nothing of concern.

They've lifted the description directly from the website - but have at least credited it...and said thank you!

It would have been polite to ask...you could mention it to them. Despite that it's quite a compliment and good advertising. A friend of mine pointed out this advert via Facebook, it has over 1000 likes and 150 shares + lots of good comments...I've lost you haven't !!
