

Lagondaforum: 1955 Lagonda 3.0 dhc for sale prices moving upwards

1955 Lagonda 3.0 dhc for sale prices moving upwards

Written by SRD at Oct 24, 2014 2:27 pm

A very fine looking Lagonda 3.0 dhc is currently for sale, or should I say under offer, at a price of £130,000. Yes, you read correctly, suggesting a possibly higher initial asking price with Desmond Smail, who sell some wonderful cars.

I knew of a fine example sold earlier in the year for £100,000.

This example with rebuilt engine/transmission, fresh paint, mechanicals all overhauled and the dash-board typically restored.

The interior is very much patinated and the car looks very good indeed, delightful judging from the pictures available.

The car is LB/290/1/92.

[http://www.djsmail.co.uk/sales-cars/product/astonmartinlagonda3litremk2drophead/#mb\[shop\]/9/](http://www.djsmail.co.uk/sales-cars/product/astonmartinlagonda3litremk2drophead/#mb[shop]/9/)

Being a serial addict of these cars, the trend is clearly mirroring AML prices overall, but typically Feltham AM cars are hard to guesstimate on price especially at auction.

I note a new total of 3.0 mk2 cars made, now 36, this seem to change by the week... Am awaiting all production data to double check against my data-base, before creating some decent graphs and hopefully better figures if this is possible.

Simon
