Lagondaforum: What are the correct horns for my M45?

What are the correct horns for my M45?

Written by bruffsup at Feb 28, 2015 2:29 pm

My works record card states "Alto HF 732" Is this an Altette high frequency? Does it have a pressed steel or cast body? I have a bunch of old horns I got with the car, some look similar to the pictures but I have also seen quite a variety of different maker's horns on Lags.

Re: What are the correct horns for my M45?

Written by davidbracey at Mar 01, 2015 5:55 am

Dear Barry,

I've no idea if any specific horn was used as standard and I've seen M45's and LG45's with various horns. I Looked into this when I restored my LG I and decided to simply restore the horns my car came with as there weren't other mounting holes to suggest they were replacements.

I found this company here in the UK that seem to restore every type so they might be a good start if you want any advice or parts.
http://www.taffthehorns.com

Good luck.

David

Re: What are the correct horns for my M45?

Written by bruffsup at Mar 01, 2015 5:55 pm

Thanks David, I will check it out. Cheers, Barry

Re: What are the correct horns for my M45?

Written by cahallett at Mar 04, 2015 3:36 pm

Dear Barry,

The contact David has given you is excellent.

Taff made up a pair of original 1933 Lucas Altette horns for my 16/80 and they were perfect right down to the correct screws, domed nuts and mountings etc…

Anyway, good luck

Best Regards
Chris
