

Lagondaforum: door inner chrome part

door inner chrome part

Written by Peter S30 at Apr 14, 2008 9:15 pm

Is this the original part (hiding the screw on the string to close the door) how was it fixed ? I assume there was a counterpart on the door now missing and there is something broken away in this chrome part.

Or was the original different ? where to get them ?

Peter

Attachments:

3ltr door chrome inner.jpg (filesize: 21.01 KB)

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by reevsy at Apr 14, 2008 11:59 pm

Sorry it not very clear but you can see the mountings.

Peter

Attachments:

Door.jpg (filesize: 57.39 KB)

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by DavidLG45 at Apr 15, 2008 4:02 pm

Hi Peter,

Is this a V12 ? If so, I believe they're identical to the LG45 items. Judging by the screw holes you have they are what you're looking for. I got some for my LG45 from Alan Brown (B99). That said he did only manage to find me 3, so doubt he could find any more. Presumably as you don't know what you need you are missing all four of them? I got a fourth from someone who was using it as a sample to try to make a set. Not an easy job. I think they gave up.

I can measure and photograph one of mine if that'd help.

David Eldred

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by Peter S30 at Apr 15, 2008 5:00 pm

Hi David,

thank you, no this is from a DB 3ltr Lagonda (1957) (my second Lagonda) But may be they continued to use them since the LG45 "never throwing away anything" or just no need to change ?

let's see if somebody else can have a look in his DB 2.6 or 3 ltr.

Peter

Lagondaforum: door inner chrome part

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by Peter S30 at Apr 19, 2008 7:13 pm

David,

good idea to look at the V12 (the picture with grey leather). An then I found a picture on the internet with the 3ltr door (the beige one). The same little part! only remaining question: where to get it ?

Attachments:

v12 door2.JPG (filesize: 2.90 KB)

a3ltr-door-part.jpg (filesize: 18.06 KB)

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by DavidLG45 at Apr 20, 2008 12:24 pm

Hi Peter,

Yes that's what I have. The same as on the LG45 as we suspected.

As I mentioned before you could try Alan Brown he may have some more. He has loads of Lagonda parts. If you are not in a hurry ask him, and he may come across some.

Another possibility is David Ayre (in members booklet) but he doesn't have much in the way of body fittings.

A visit to Alan or David and looking for parts yourself can be worthwhile. I do realise you're in Germany though!

Basically a pressed piece of steel or brass but as you can see in your pix quite a deep shape if you were to make some.

David

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by Colin M34 at Apr 20, 2008 12:39 pm

Folks,

If you happen to come across a cache of these, I need one of these for my 16/80 drophead.

Colin M34

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by DavidLG45 at Apr 20, 2008 12:56 pm

Peter,

It seems from Colin's post that these were used on other models as well. An ad in the newsletter may produce something. . . .

David

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by Colin M34 at Apr 20, 2008 2:15 pm

Folks,

Lagondaforum: door inner chrome part

My 16/80 has a VdP body - albeit assembled in the Lagonda Factory. I would have thought that 'our' chrome item is a standard bought in component supplied by one of the body fittings suppliers of the time.

We need to keep looking around to see if anyone is making a replica, and then to tip off fellow readers of their availability.

Keep smiling (and looking)

Colin M34

Re: door inner chrome part

Written by reevsy at Apr 28, 2008 4:41 pm

Hi Peter here is how my fixes to the door

Peter

Attachments:

Lagonda door fitting.jpg (filesize: 103.35 KB)
